

Athena Vouloumanos

New York University

Building a Communication
System in Infancy

Wednesday, May 4th

5:00 to 7:00pm

Haines 352

UCLA Center for Language, Interaction, and Culture

Humans evolved a sophisticated communication system. How is this system learned during infancy? I'll discuss how infants understand the role of speech and gestures in communicative interactions and how this changes during early development.

<http://cllc.ss.ucla.edu>